HIGHWAYMEN'S HAUL.

Thirty-one Thousand Dollars Taken by Train Robbers.

Two Tennesseans Fight Until Both Are Killed.

Specials to the Star.

DODGE CITY, KANSAS, Oct. 20.—Advice reaches here from Trinidad, Colorado, of the robbing of the train at Las Vegas. It was just pulling out of the yards at the latter place when it was boarded by five robbers, all in masks and all heavily armed. They at once seized the express messenger, Sam. Monroe, overpowered him and took from him his keys. They then opened the Express Company's safe and rifled it of nearly $31,000. The outlaws then dropped off the train while it was still in motion and made good their escape. The train men and passengers were all ignorant of the affair, and it was not known to them for several hours. Three thousand dollars of the amount taken was a voucher to the Santa Fe Company and can not be negoti- ated by the robbers. All the rest of the haul was available cash.

NEITHER ONE GOT AWAY.

NASHVILLE, TENN., Oct. 20.—Andrew Pat- ton and Dan. McClannahan, two colored men, fought a bloody fight five miles back of Franklin, the county-seat of Williamson County. COOL AND PREMEDITATED MURDER.

MADISON, WIS., Oct. 20.—Yesterday at Milton Junction near Janesville, this State, a farmer named Christianson, it appears, suspected his wife and a neighbor named Fogarty of illicit relations. He laid in wait for Fogarty and murdered him, dragging the body out and placing it between two haystacks, covering it over and setting the hay on fire. The crime was soon discovered and Christianson arrested. He confessed and is now in jail.

DASTARDLY MURDER IN MASSACHUSETTS.

WORCESTER, MASS., Oct. 20.—One of the most atrocious murders ever committed in this section occurred in Millbury, a few miles from this city, Saturday night. Louis Army met James Colter, who was return- ing from a party in company with his two sisters. Army used insulting and obscene language, and Colter remonstrated, when Army drew a knife and stabbed Colter in the heart. Colter fell into his sister's arms saying: "Sis, I'm bleeding," and immedi- ately expired. Army surrendered himself to the police.

BLAIR JURY STILL OUT.

NEWARK, N. J., Oct. 20.—At mid-night the jury did not agree and the Court or- dered a clearing of spectators and refresh- ments to prevent communication with the jury-room from the outside. DEPARTURES OF THE PRESIDENT—SUCCESSFUL CASE OF TRAMPING.

National Associated Press to the Star.

COLUMBUS, O., Oct. 20.—President Hayes and wife left this noon for Washington via the Baltimore & Ohio Road.

Dr. Drury, surgeon and physician of the Penitentiary, performed an operation of trepanning on a convict in the prison this morning, and removed successfully nine pieces of bone from the brain. The man had fallen some four years since from a scaffold, striking with the back of the head on a nail in a board, which penetrated the brain, ever since which time he has been afflicted with epi- lepsy that steadily grew worse. The operation was performed for the relief of this complaint. As it is the second operation ever performed on the prisoner, and about the third in the city, it creates considerable talk among the disciples of Esculapian. The patient at last accounts was doing well.

BEAR AND LION

Growling at Each Other O'er the Afghan Border.

Russia Occupies Merv and Will Move Upon Herat.

AFGHAN.

LONDON, Oct. 20.—A telegram from Pesh- awar announces that the Russians have oc- cupied Merv after a desperate battle. This advance and victory renders the ultimate occupation of Herat by the Russian col- umn only a question of a little time. The latter place is only about 250 miles south down the banks of the Murghab. The En- glish army in Afghanistan is not in a position to move forward to make any demonstrations of resistance to the ap- proaching Russian column. The news of the occupation of Merv is regarded with much anxiety and consternation at the Foreign Office. Severe comment is made in outside circles upon alleged stupidity of Government in not having long ago pressed on to Herat, which was known to be the true key to the position.

Notwithstanding her protestations that she had no design upon Afghanistan, her present advance shows her purpose to garrison the frontier without delay. With Russia at Herat and England at Kabul, under the necessity of warring on her ancient enemy, it is believed the coming contest be- tween the two powers can not be much longer delayed. The tone of conversation in and about Downing street is flavored with a sense of the inevitability of this result in the near future.

HUNTING HOSTILITIES.

Gen. Adams Continues His Search for the Murderous Utes.

Secretary Schurz Carrying on the Campaign.

Special to the Star.

DENVER, Oct. 20.—Mr. Ralph Meeker, representing the New York Tribune, and oldest son of the murdered Father Meeker, left here Saturday to visit his two sisters now living at Greeley. He is now en route to join General Adams' expedition up the Grand, in search of his mother and sister. It is believed here that the women are still safe, and advice to that effect from General Adams is momentarily expected.

Among the prisoners held by the savages are Mrs. Price, widow of one of the mur- dered employes, and her two children. Kind parties at Cheyenne have written Governor Pitkin that if Mrs. Price is released, they will be provided with homes for the future.

GEN. ADAMS' MISSION.

WASHINGTON, Oct. 20.—Gen. Adams has been instructed to find the hostiles. His first demand will be that the women be re- leased, and the next that their arms be given up. He is also instructed to meet Merritt, and in case either demand is re- fused he will declare the Indians hostile, and Merritt will then pursue his own course. Adams has been instructed to withdraw the troops under Gen. Merritt and order them to their proper stations, leaving at White River Agency only a sufficient number of men to guard Govern- ment property. The concentration of troops will continue in the neighborhood of the Southern Ute Agencies, where it is now known the Northern Utes are, and a de- mand will be made upon them to give them up. The following regiments are now in Colorado or on their way there to join the Fourth Cavalry: The 19th, 22d and 23d Infantry and the 9th Cavalry, the 4th and 9th Cavalry and 22d Infantry being only represented by about half of their regiments.

WASHINGTON, D. C., Oct. 20.—General Merritt's force has not been withdrawn from the Indian country as some dispatches gave out. The situation of affairs has been both misunderstood and misrepresented. The Interior Department has entire control of the Indians and a perfect right to make a first attempt to settle all Indian difficul- ties in such manner as it may see fit.

At a conference several days ago be- tween General Sherman and Secretary Schurz the latter requested that Merritt should be halted until a special agent sent out by the Interior Department could reach Uruay and ascertain if arrangements could not be made by which the captive women and property of the White River Agency and the murderers of Agent Meeker and his employees, and the Indians who took part in the attack on Thornburg could be delivered up.

General Sherman, recognizing the prop- erty of first exhausting all peaceable re- sources, sent word to General Sheridan to halt General Merritt pending the negotia- tions between the Interior Department and Uruay. All the disabled of Merritt's com- mand will be sent to the rear, and a large supply of provisions will be forwarded to him. If the Interior Department fails in its negotiations Merritt will again advance on the Indians.

FITZ'S FRENZY.

Cold-blooded Crime of a Michigan Carpenter.

Murders His Wife and Daughter in a Drunken Freak.

Special to the Star.

DETOIT, MICH., Oct. 20.—One of the most atrocious, unprovoked and unaccountable deeds ever perpetrated in this State is just announced in a special from Lapeer. James M. Fitz, a carpenter by trade, but a gen- erally worthless man by reputation, living in Hadly Township, near Lapeer, on Satur- day engaged in a reckless spree.

He sold his carpenter tools and with the proceeds purchased a bottle of whisky. Filling up on this he stole a horse, and pro- ceeding to his home shot down in cold blood his wife and daughter. Then mount- ing his stolen steed he rapidly rode away, and has not yet been caught.

His murdered wife was an honest, hard- working woman who had toiled to help maintain the villain, and the daughter was a handsome and highly-esteemed young lady. The awful crime has aroused the whole country to such an extent that if Fitz is caught it will be short shrift for him.

The men at once formed into line and proceeded to Mitchell & Rammelsberg's in procession. The firm, however, refused to acknowledge that the men were a Union, and did not acquiesce in their demands.
